

Press contact:
info@anythingyoulose.com

A HIGHLY ANTICIPATED DOCUMENTARY Anything You Lose TO HAVE UK PREMIER AT THE FERTILITY FESTIVAL IN LONDON

New York- The documentary film Anything You Lose is slated for a UK Premiere at the Fertility Festival in London, UK. Established in 2016 by fertility patients and arts producers, Gabby Vautier and Jessica Hepburn, Fertility Festival is the world's first and largest arts festival dedicated to fertility, infertility, reproductive science and modern families with the mission to improve the understanding of the emotional journey resulting from infertility, the level of public conversation about infertility and reproductive science, and fertility education for young people.

Anything You Lose is supported by grants from the New York State Council on the Arts and the Cardozo School of Law's Indie Film Clinic. The film is the centerpiece of the Big Fat Festival Day, and is the only feature to be presented within the framework of the 3-week festival. Directed and produced by Irina Vodar, the film was shot in the U.S., India and Russia, reflecting upon the director's fertility patient experience.

SCREENING TIME AND VENUE

FERTILITY FESTIVAL

Barbican Theater
London, UK

<https://www.fertilityfest.com/big-fat-festival-day-barbican>

Main Public Screening: Friday May 3, 1:45pm

SYNOPSIS

An extraordinary story spanning seven years of cinema vérité surveillance, Anything You Lose is a remarkable new feature documentary focusing on the director's personal journey through assisted reproduction resulting in an eye-opening study of the psychological effects of prolonged exposure to treatment and the innate human need to connect through time and generations.

Watch the trailer at anythingyoulose.com

High resolution photos and additional press materials and information is available at www.anythingyoulose.com